

My father is a role model to me as he often reminds me to look at setbacks positively and pick up some valuable lessons. He motivates me to put in my best effort in whatever things I do to achieve my goals. I chose this photograph as he often guides me to choose the path that I want to take. I have learnt from him that good results is not the only route to success. What matters most are the challenges that we overcome along the journey. He often advocates the importance of values and character; and wants us to show kindness and compassion towards the less fortunate.
